Cape to Bluff Simon Devitt

A portrait of New Zealand's most inspiring residential architecture journeying across the islands from north to south.

What makes Aotearoa New Zealand one of the most picturesque countries in the world? Its striking landscape can range from the snow-capped alps to the breezy ocean in a few hundred kilometres, requiring a creative approach to home building that is responsive to the natural environment – a challenge skilfully accepted by contemporary architects.

Sales Points

- Features 30 incredible Kiwi homes, some never seen before, photographed exclusively for the book.
- Showcases the work of NZ's top architects and how they create architecture that responds to people, place, landscape and climate.

FASHION

Yves Saint Laurent: Flora

Yves Saint Laurent's passion for flowers and gardens was the source of endless inspiration. From a thousand and one rose buds to sprigs of lily of the valley, from an avalanche of bougainvillea to delicate poppy blooms, and from sheaves of wheat to majestic lilies, he metamorphosed nature in his creations. Employing flowers as a palette of patterns and techniques, he adorned women in floral appliqués, prints, and embroideries.

Art and Society 1972-2022-2072

Hatje Cantz Verlag

Since the advent of modernity, art has been associated with freedom, provocation and courage. In 1972, art was to unfold its potential as an emancipatory and creative force as part of the Gesamtkunstwerk of the XX. Olympic Games in Munich - according to the grand vision of its planners. The international avant-garde of the time, including Walter de Maria, Gerhard Richter, Andy Warhol and Dan Flavin, developed revolutionary concepts. After the tragic assassination of Israeli athletes, concepts such as the "Spielstrabe" were canceled. This publication is the first to give an impression of the playful, participatory cultural programme of 1972.

Odie Henderson

A definitive account of Blaxploitation cinema - the freewheeling, often shameless, and wildly influential genre - from a distinctive voice in film history and criticism. In 1971, two films grabbed the movie business, shook it up, and launched a genre that would help define the decade. Melvin Van Peebles's Sweet Sweetback's Baadasssss Song and Gordon Parks's Shaft were huge hits, making millions of dollars. Not for the last time did Hollywood discover that Black people went to movies too. The Blaxploitation era was born.

Caspar David Friedrich
Johannes Grave

Published to mark the 250th anniversary of Caspar David Friedrich's birth, this is the most thorough Friedrich retrospective in many years. Friedrich is renowned as the Romantic painter par excellence, his works icons of an age of major social upheaval. His landscape paintings and drawings broke with traditional patterns of representation, and paved new ways of both experiencing and reflecting on the ambivalent relationship between humankind and nature. This catalogue centres on more than sixty paintings and about 100 drawings, re-examining the artist's groundbreaking work in light of the urgent challenges in a time of climate crisis.

Steidl

Eat More Plants. A Chef's Journal is a collection of Daniel Humm's drawings and handwritten thoughts charting the re-imagining of his acclaimed three-Michelin-Star restaurant Eleven Madison Park as wholly plant-based in 2021. Shaped by the seasonality underlying Humm's cooking, this is a revealing visual diary of a chef dedicated to pro-planet values as the basis of fine dining, and the liberating realization that following traditions had been his greatest limitation. EARLY RELEASE FEBRUARY.

Daring French Explorations

Hubert Sagnières

Sixteen French explorers embark readers on their voyages around the world, to witness the trials and tribulations encountered as they charted new routes to remote territories. Beautifully illustrated with some 300 documents-including previously unpublished or rare texts, maps, and illustrations from centuries-old sketchbooks, this book will introduce readers to these intrepid travelers and their extraordinary scientific, military, or commercial voyages, which have significantly marked the history of world exploration and contributed to our modern understanding of geography, cartography, climate change, and global cultures.

The book celebrating 100 years since the founding of the historic Italian multinational company. In the early 1920s, Oronzio De Nora was a young electrochemistry researcher at Politecnico di Milano. Experimenting with a new electrolytic cell, he cut his finger; he dipped the wound into the plant's oxygenated and electrified solution and invented Amuchina, a chlorine disinfectant. Over the course of the 20th century, the De Nora company became a world leader in the production of chlorine and soda; it developed hundreds of patents and established itself as one of the key drivers for industrial development

Eva-Maria Fahrner-Tutsek: Fade Away

Hirmer

Concealed, faded and rusting, the signs lie by the roadside. Their text and associative images have lost their connection with reality, as if they had been forgotten in the landscape. The photographer Eva-Maria Fahrner-Tutsek has tracked down these anachronistic remains in Ibiza and presents them in a poetic photo publication as a reminiscence of the past.

Adrian Shaughnessy

A major monograph on the legendary US typographer and graphic designer Herb Lubalin. One of the original Mad Men, Herb Lubalin was a giant of American design and typography whose passion for rebellion and innovation made him one of the most successful art directors of the 20th century and beyond. He is perhaps most recognized for his typeface Avant Garde, but his reach extended far and wide. A constant boundary breaker on both a visual and social level, he was a co-creator of the culture-shocking magazines Avant-Garde, Eros and Fact, and founder of the equally influential U&Ic. NEW EDITION.

In the Beginning: Anselm Kiefer & Photography

Jean de Loisy, Sebastien Delot, Heiner Bastian, Christian Weikop

The first book to consider Kiefer's photography and use of photographs in his wider artistic practice. Known for his monumental painting and installations, the internationally celebrated artist Anselm Kiefer's works are marked by a constant questioning of history and collective memory. Born in Germany two months before the Nazi capitulation in 1945, Kiefer's reflections on post-war identity, loss, and shared experience, nourished by myths and literature, create an unparalleled breadth of imagery. This book presents over 130 works charting the artist's relationship with photography.

Jacques Cordier: Catalogue Raisonné

Editions Skira Paris

The catalogue raisonné of the artist's complete works, featuring his famous seascapes and other lesser-known works. Jacques Cordier (1937-1975) was a French painter with a versatile artistic technique: when he wasn't using oil paint, he painted in watercolor or drew in Indian ink. Despite his short life, Cordier produced a multitude of works, listed here in this catalogue raisonné with over 1,200 illustrations. The catalogue covers his entire body of work, which is more than 20 years of creation.

The first monograph in English on a major Polish painter. Józef Halas (1927-2015) is one of the major Polish painters of his generation. Active in Wrocław from 1949 until his death, he left a unique body of work that has remained long unrecognized in Western Europe and North America. For a decade, the history of art has fortunately opened its field of investigation, modernity has become plural and its actors have become more numerous. There is no doubt that aims to contribute to the knowledge of Halas's work beyond Poland and by placing it in an international context.

Khalif Tahir Thompson

Editions Skira Paris

The first monograph of a virtuoso painter. Khalif Tahir Thompson is an African-American painter who has just graduated from The Yale School of Art. His work is populated by black figures in colourful, shimmering environments that sometimes resemble patchworks verging on abstraction. Yet each of his works seems rooted in reality. The artist imbues his figures with a genuine psychological identity, revealing himself to be an outstanding portraitist. He uses a diversity of materials, painting in oils and acrylics, creating his own papers, and mixing pearls, fabric, velvet, newspaper and leather to create wonderful material effects.

LiFang

Editions Skira Paris

Born in Jiangsu, China, LiFang lives and works in Paris. Her figurative work, on the border of abstraction, deals with all the subjects of our daily universe: antonymous crowds in megalopolises, portraits of her entourage, scenes of idleness at the water's edge, current events (Chinese censorship, migrants)... Her singular technique proceeds in large strokes: the bodies appear as sculpted blocks, right in the colored material. This refusal to individualize the characters transforms the subjects into beings who send us back the image of our shared solitudes. This first monograph invites the reader to explore all aspects of her work.

The Lost Mirror: Jews and Conversos in Medieval Spain

Museo Nacional del Prado

Every image we create is a mirror that reflects a way of seeing. Using a broad selection of works, this exhibition recreates a medieval mirror that shows how Jews and conversos (converts to Christianity) were portrayed by Christians in Spain from 1285 to 1492. Images played a key role in the complex relationship between these groups during this period. On the one hand, they were an important vehicle for the transmission of rites and artistic models and provided a space for collaboration between communities. On the other, they helped spread the growing anti-Judaism embedded in Christian society.

Massinissa Selmani

Editions Skira Paris

A complete monograph on the artist shortlisted for the Prix Duchamp 2023. Massinissa Selmani has chosen the omnipresence of current events as the common thread running through his work. Documentary drawing is at the root of his artistic practice. Many of his drawings are composed of or inspired by press clippings, in which he takes pleasure in selecting elements to serve as a basis for his works, and then juxtaposes them with more absurd and mystical components. The artist plays with balance, hesitates between fiction and reality, and constructs ambiguous images that trigger mystery, intrigue and reflection in the viewer.

Matthew Wong - Vincent van Gogh

Kenny Schachter, Joost van der Hoeven, Richard Schiff, John Yau

A beautifully illustrated exploration of the artistic and personal connections between Matthew Wong (1984-2019) and Vincent van Gogh. Shortly before his early death, the Canadian artist emerged as a phenomenon. He started drawing and painting at the age of 27, and within just a few years had developed a highly personal style, using intense colours to paint imaginative landscapes. Wong's expressively lyrical works were inspired by both traditional Chinese painting and Western art. He was especially influenced by Vincent van Gogh, both in terms of his painting style and choice of motifs, and also in some aspects of his life.

Max Beckmann
Hirmer

Max Beckmann (1884-1950), the outstanding Expressionist painter, is regarded as one of the most important artists of the twentieth century. His works, jostling with figures and full of colour, are packed with highly symbolic messages. They are critical of the times in which he lived and bear witness to Beckmann's struggle with existential questions and his constant search for truth.

The first properly posthumous retrospective, this book highlights the significance of Mike Kelley's influential four-decade career on the development of art since the 1970s. Ghost and Spirit highlights the significant and prescient questions about the role of art, the artist, and about gender and class, in terms that stem from Kelley's own position as a white, heterosexual man in post-modern, capitalist America. Featuring a diverse range of voices and covering over four decades of Kelley's work spanning performance, sculpture, video and installation, this book is a pertinent presentation of the breadth, complexity and significance of Kelley's influential practice.

Miron Schmückle: Flesh for Fantasy (Multilingual edition)
Hatje Cantz

The Romanian-German artist Miron Schmückle is a singular position within contemporary art. Growing up in Romania under Nicolae Ceausescu, he dreamed of other worlds that seemed forever inaccessible due to the Iron Curtain. His pictorial cosmos has been linked to the idea of primeval forests, oscillating between hyperrealism and undisguised escapism, precise observation of nature and exuberant imagination. His fascinating hybrid creatures intertwine notions of scent and poison, beauty and transience, anatomy and sexuality to create an oeuvre between truth and invention that is both timeless and ostensibly fallen out of time. MULTILINGUAL EDITION | ENGLISH, GERMAN & ROMANIAN.

Robert Rauschenberg's »Erased de Kooning Drawing« (1953)

Gregor Stemmerich

Erased de Kooning Drawing is an artwork that radically challenged the very definition of art and the notion of the artist as creator. Three artists were involved in its creation: In 1953, Robert Rauschenberg erased a drawing by Willem de Kooning, who had somewhat reluctantly been giving his consent. Jasper Johns created a label for its first public presentation that proved to be key to the psychological framing of the piece. Stemmerich outlines its status as a litmus test for the definitions of modernism, literalism and postmodernism, and demonstrates its continuing relevance.

Deliss speaks with leading women artists including Ruth Buchanan, Otobong Nkanga, Collier Schorr, Rosemarie Trockel, Joëlle Tuerlinx, and Andrea Zittel about when they knew there was no going back. ## Transform! Design and the Future of Energy

Daniel Barber, Carola Hein, Stephan Rammler

Tangible, sustainable energy solutions for designers to incorporate into buildings, products and more. Energy is the central driving force of our society. But all buildings, infrastructure and products with which energy is generated, distributed and used are designed. Design must therefore also play a central role in urgently needed energy transition. This publication accompanying the exhibition "Transform! Designing the Future of Energy" explores the current, radical transformation of the energy sector from a design perspective: from products that harvest renewable energies to the design of solar houses and wind turbines, from intelligent mobility concepts to future visions of self-sufficient cities.

Wilmotte - Murano

The book presents the work of French designer Jean-Michel Wilmotte through crafts. Celebrating the unique skills of glassblowers and glass artisans, Wilmotte's collection Vessels is a mix of nostalgia and modernity. Works, mainly inspired by his childhood's memories and objects in his father's pharmaceutical laboratory, are made in the historical workshops of Murano (an island in the Venetian Lagoon known all around the world for the glass creations of its artisans).

Ylla: The Birth of Modern Animal Potography

Pryor Dodge

Ylla (1911-1955) devoted herself exclusively to animal portraiture at a time when nobody had thought of only photographing animals. She created something new - the genre of expression and personality in animals. This is the story of a "New Woman" par excellence, Ylla was fearless and knew no limits, and of a pioneer animal photographer in Africa and India.

Yves Clerc

Pascal Bonafoux

Yves Clerc began his career in drawing and photography, before turning to painting and abstraction, followed by figuration. He offers us a poetic vision of the world, where shimmering colors rub shoulders with flat blacks. Yves Clerc's aim is not to tell, but to show. Yves Clerc loves texture and plays with boundaries: he paints long, crumpled draperies that he creates with a juxtaposition of layers of paint, but also of techniques - oil on canvas, acrylic, drawing, painting on photo.
