

OCTOBER 2024 NEW RELEASES

65,000 YearsA Short History of Australian ArtMarcia Langton and Judith Ryan*

A landmark publication on the history of Indigenous Australian art – this courageous and comprehensive exploration calls us to bear witness to 65,000 years of continuous culture, Indigenous knowledge and powerful art.

Long before Britain's invasion of Australia in 1788, First Peoples' cultural and design traditions flourished for thousands of generations. Their art shaped the continent as we know it today and the societies that thrived here; but these continuing artistic practices and new art forms were disregarded by the settlers, and not considered to be 'fine art' until the late 1980s.

Today Indigenous art and artists are at the forefront of contemporary art practice. In very real and tangible ways, this publication reveals the artistic brilliance of Australia's First Peoples and stands as a testament to their resilience.

Long before the British invaded Australia in 1788, first peoples' art traditions flourished for thousands of generations. Their art shaped the continent as we know it today and the societies that thrived here; but it was not regarded as 'fine art' by the settlers until the late 1980s. 65,000 Years: A Short History of Australian Art celebrates the longevity and brilliance of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander art.

Featuring new writing by leading thinkers across generations and disciplines, this publication celebrates Indigenous Australian art across media, time and language groups.

- This is an ambitious re-examination of the history of Indigenous Australian art.
- Over 200 cultural objects and works of art are illustrated in colour.
- There will be an extensive exhibition at the University of Melbourne's revitalised Potter Museum of Art, opening in 2025.
- Metallic anthracite foiled cover and cobalt blue sprayed edges.
- Major marketing and publicity campaign.

Portrait of a Collection

TarraWarra Museum of Art

Edited by Victoria Lynn & Anthony Fitzpatrick

An insightful and inspiring overview of TarraWarra Museum of Art's collection of 20th and 21st century Australian art.

TarraWarra Museum of Art in the Yarra Valley holds one of the country's finest collections of Australian art from the 1930s to the present day. Established through the generous donation of founding patrons, the late Marc Besen AC and Eva Besen AO, the museum's collection follows three prevailing themes: landscape, the solitary figure and abstraction. This richly illustrated book offers contemporary interpretative lenses on the history of Australian art since the 1930s, bringing the relevance of the collection into the present day.

Sales Points

- TarraWarra Museum of Art holds a nationally significant collection of Australian art and this book features the works of 100 Australian artists who have been instrumental in shaping the development of modern and contemporary art in Australia.
- Features over 200 works and a photographic essay on the Museum and grounds by Rory Gardiner.
- The book includes a broad range of new essays by 48 leading art historians, curators and artists, offering contemporary interpretative lenses on the history and development of Australian art since the 1930s and bringing the relevance of the collection into the present day.
- Opening this summer, the new Eva and Marc Besen Centre will provide year-round visible access to over 300 stored artworks from the collection and a new multi-purpose learning and performance space.
- Cloth-bound book with inset image of Brett Whiteley painting on back cover.
